January Education Opportunities

Ed Galston will teach an Advanced Powerboat Handling Course on January 13, 2011, at the offices of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) offices, behind the Belk store in Washington square Mall. This course is open to the public, but seating is limited. The only cost is $7.00 to cover lunch. The program starts at 9:00 am. If you are interested, call Ed at 940-0404.

We need instructors! The most important community service we provide is safe-boating education, and we can't do it without your help. Certification is not difficult, and we will give you all the help you need. We are holding an Instructor Re-certification Course on Saturday, January 15, 2011, at the Lifestyles Fitness Center behind the Beaufort County Hospital. This course will fulfill the requirements for existing instructors to update their certificates, and will also help you become an instructor. Call or email Rob Stanley at 940-8107, or rstanley@pamlicosailandpowersquadron.org.

Scott and Inza Mackenzie have developed a wonderful program to explain the Advanced uses of the Maptech program. Their first seminar, offered to PSPS members in December, was a huge success! If you use Maptech, I advise you sign up for their next seminar.

Please put Saturday, January 22, 2011, on your calendars, and pull out your best glad rags for the PSPS Annual Meeting and Change of Watch. Your invitation will arrive shortly.
See you there!
